TASTING NOTES

SPICES · PLUM · PEPPER

This Cabernet Sauvignon reflects the versatility of the command post and the boldness of those who occupy it. This wine showcases suede tannins with a strong body as currants, plum, and cocoa powder march across your taste buds.

HISTORICAL NOTES

The number one priority for a good command post position is survivability, for it is the nerve center of a battle. It holds the tools and personnel - including the commander - from which both strategic and tactical decisions will emanate.
